The Treasure Box

Jim was on holiday staying at a hotel that had once been a castle. There was a famous legend that claimed that centuries ago when battles raged regularly a frightened king, who was locked in battle with a neighbouring baron, had buried all his valuable treasure in a secret spot deep beneath the castle. Just hours later the castle was captured by the enemy and the king was no more.

Over the centuries the story was almost forgotten - until now. Quite by chance, Jim who was staying in the castle, had stumbled across a very ancient, dusty book that not only told the story of the knight's treasure but also told of a map, a map marking the very spot where the treasure was located. Jim's curiosity was aroused and he decided he would search high and low until he found this map.

And now he was really excited. Hidden under piles of junk he had spotted a corner of a box. He pulled it out, blew off the dust and gasped in wonder. It was beautiful.

The ornamental box was taken from the cellar and placed carefully in the centre of the table in the study. Jim's next task was to open the box. Try as he would, he could discover no keyhole, so it seemed clear that a spring of some sort would have to be found.

There were numerous decorations carved on the top and on the sides: grinning faces, baskets of fruit, sheaves of corn, any of which when pressed, might cause a panel to slide or a lid to spring open. There were many failures before Jim's searching fingers finally discovered the correct spot. As he pressed the most beautiful carving of a lotus flower the box opened and revealed its secret. There lay the roll of parchment he had been looking for. He hoped it was the treasure map, the clue to the vast hoard that was hidden somewhere in the castle.

Put a circle round the right answer for each question
